Phil became the dean of ASU Online in July 2009. He is responsible for guiding Arizona State University's expansion into online learning and leadership role in education innovation. In five years, ASU Online has grown from 400 to nearly 10,000 students and from six to more than 60 degree programs. The university has received recognition from The New York Times and Bill Gates for its work in adaptive learning and use of data in student advising, as well as earning the top ranking by U.S. News & World Report for online student services and technology. Dean Regier previously served as executive dean at the W.P. Carey School of Business at ASU. He is an accounting faculty member and has published research in leading academic journals on postretirement benefits, corporate restructuring and market-based accounting. Dean Regier earned his undergraduate degree in philosophy and mathematics from St. John's College and his Ph.D. in accountancy from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
